Patient agreement to investigation or treatment

In order to make a decision, you need to have information from health professionals about the treatment or investigation which is being offered to you. You should always ask them more questions if you do not understand or if you want more information.

For example:

- What sort of things will the treatment involve?
- What are the benefits?
- How good are the chances of getting such benefits?
- Are there any alternatives?
- What are the risks, if any?
- If there are risks, are they minor or serious?
- What may happen if you don't have treatment?

If the person asking for your consent to treatment is not able to answer your questions, ask them to find out.

If you would find it easier to ask questions with someone supporting you, take a friend with you, or ask about local advocacy services. The centre will be able to advise you of this. You can also ask for someone of the same sex as yourself to be with you while you are being examined or treated.
